Dorchester

Gun, drug charges follow shooting

A Mattapan man is being held on $25,000 bail after leading police on a foot chase after a shooting Sunday night in Dorchester.

Errin Crawford, 26, was arraigned Monday on gun and drug charges.

During a foot chase, police said they saw Crawford discard a small, plastic bag containing 12 individually wrapped bags of cocaine. They also said they found a loaded Raven 25 caliber handgun.

A 21-year-old Dorchester man, who was shot multiple times, is expected to survive.

former Transportation Secretary Jim Aloisi said the board would reduce accountability and add "another layer of bureaucracy."

Pollack questioned why people are "afraid" of the control board, which would be able to approve or reject arbitrated contracts, she said, oversight power afforded to city councils but unavailable to the T. SHNS

BU police warn about serial student groper, seek suspect

Sexual assaults.

Multiple women have reported being groped as they walked near campus.

Boston University Police are on the hunt for a groper wanted in three sexual assaults that took place on Monday evening and over the weekend.

Three women reported being groped in the Commonwealth Avenue area by a male suspect who then fled the area after the assaults.

"When something like this happens, we would encourage, but not pressure, victims to tell the police and talk to someone they trust," B.U.'s Center for Gender, Sexuality and Activism volunteer Kara Webb said.

"We advise people to go out with friends or known associates and stick to the strength in numbers," Webb said. "Unfortunately, that is sometimes used on the flipside in blaming a victim for not going far above

Groped

Details on the assaults

The first incident happened around 5:23 p.m. near Chester Street.

The victim said she felt the suspect approach her from behind and attempt to lift her dress. The victim then spun around and struck the suspect and chased him until he got away.

The second incident took place near 855 Commonwealth Ave. when a suspect approached the victim from behind, lifted her skirt and fled toward the Agganis Arena.

The third assault took place on the B.U. Bridge.

Similar assaults were reported over the weekend in the Linden Street, Ashford Street and Pratt Street area.

The suspect is described as a white male in his thirties, 5 feet 9, about 165 lbs., with a thin build and short hair.

and beyond to avoid an assault. Our mission is to ensure that people are able to feel safe if they need a place to discuss instances like this."

Sex therapist Dr. Dan Pollets said that behaviors like a serial groper are often progressive, meaning that the perpetrator will actively seek more of these thrills to get a higher stimulation.

"In general, instances like this are more of a fetish behavior and taking a victim by surprise," Pollets said. "Quite often, the perpetrator has been sexually abused or traumatized."

Pollets said that in many cases, the perpetrator will play a sort of "cat and mouse" game with authorities.

"They will commit an act in one location then another in a different location on purpose to throw off authorities," he said. "It is important to know that the community is at risk until this person is caught."

Falling tree injures two kids in Chelsea

The area inside Washington Park in Chelsea where a large tree fell on two small children earlier this week is now closed off. / NICOLAUS CZARNECKI, METRO

Authorities say a large tree fell on several children in a Chelsea playground, sending at least two of the to hospitals.

The two — ages two and eight — were taken to area hospital for their injuries.

Chelsea Police described their injuries as serious, with one being treated for a possible fractured skull.

Witnesses reported hearing a cracking sound before the tree fell in Washington Park just before 7 p.m. Monday.

Chelsea authorities closed the park as a precaution and have ordered the park remain closed until other trees are deemed to be safe.

"I am wishing both of the injured children a speedy recovery and am grateful that others in the park escaped injury," Chelsea Police Chief Brian Kyes said in a statement.

"I also thank the other adults in the park who acted quickly to remove the children from the debris and by assisting first responders."

Cops look to treat, not charge, opiate users

Gloucester.

"Lives are literally at stake," say police.

The Gloucester Police Department is taking a large step in combating the opiate epidemic plaguing the seaside city.

As of June 1, Gloucester Police will not arrest anyone who walks in high on arrival or in possession of needles, other drug paraphernalia or controlled substances. Instead of treating addicts and users as criminals, the police will take steps to help the individual toward detox and recovery. The GPD have teamed up with the Addison Gilbert and Lahey Clinics, who have committed to helping individuals by assigning an "angel" who will sponsor and aid their recovery.

To accompany this new measure, CVS Pharmacies will offer Nasal Narcan without prescription. The opioid blocker has changed the world of opiate treatment by preventing respiratory depression, sedation and hypotension without creating dependency as morphine does.

The GPD will pay for the cost of the nasal spray for those without insurance from money directly confiscated from drug dealers. In the GPD's Facebook announcement, they said they "will save lives with the money from the pockets of those who would take them."

GPD Chief Leonard Campanello said he will travel to Washington D.C. on May 12 where he will ask elected officials to hold federal agencies, insurance companies and big businesses accountable for building a support system in hopes of maintaining a long-term support system for those afflicted by addiction.

"I have been on both sides of this issue, having spent seven years as a plainclothes narcotics detective," Campanello wrote. "I have arrested or charged many addicts and dealers. I've never arrested a tobacco addict, nor have I ever seen one turned down for help when they develop lung cancer, whether or not they have insurance. The reasons for the difference in care between a tobacco addict and an opiate addict is stigma and money. Petty reasons to lose a life."

Marathon kisser connects with kissee's wife

Barbara Tatge, a cancer survivor from Tennessee, made good on her daughter's bet while running the race last month: she planted a kiss on a hot guy. Then, as chronicled in the Wellesley Townsman, her daughter launched a quest to find the man. They got a response — from his wife. "When this story aired on the news we were pretty surprised," wrote the wife, who went unnamed in the Townsman. "For me, I'm not mad. Believe me, our friends have gotten a lot of mileage out of this story and I have thoroughly enjoyed watching them give my husband grief."

Tatge for her part, apologized if the "media firestorm" caused him "any discomfort." "I accepted my daughter's good-hearted dare of reversing the Wellesley tradition," Tatge told the paper.

Testimony: Elder bomber was cruel man

Bombing trial.

Tamerlan Tsarnaev was hurtful and dominating, witnesses testified Tuesday.

The older of the two brothers in the Boston Marathon bombing was a controlling boyfriend who terrified his future wife's friends but held great influence in his family, witnesses testified as lawyers fought to save the younger brother's life.

Tamerlan Tsarnaev, 26, died four days after the April 15, 2013 attack that killed three people and injured 264. His younger brother, Dzhokhar Tsarnaev, last month was convicted of carrying out the attack and could be sentenced to death.

Defense lawyers on Tuesday continued to call witnesses to make their case that the surviving brother, 21, should be sentenced to life in prison without possibility of release rather than death for carrying out one of the highest-profile attacks on U.S. soil since Sept. 11, 2001.

The lawyers, who at the trial's opening in March conceded that Dzhokhar Tsarnaev had committed all the crimes of which he was accused, contend that Tamerlan was the driving force behind the bombing, with his younger brother going along out of a sense of sibling loyalty.

The jury also heard testimony that the Tsarnaevs' father, Anzor, was mentally ill and that the oldest healthy male in any family of the Tsarnaevs' Chechen ethnicity was expected to lead and be obeyed.

Amanda Ransom, 25, told jurors that her college friendship with Katherine Russell, Tamerlan's widow, unraveled

Tamerlan Tsarnaev during his boxing practice at the Wai Kru Mixed Martial Arts Center on April 27, 2009 near Boston. / GETTY IMAGES

An overbearing brother

Prior defense witnesses have testified that Dzhokhar Tsarnaev was unlike his aggressive brother.

- The father, Anzor Tsarnaev, suffered from seizures, post-traumatic stress disorder and believed he was being tailed by Russian spies, his former psychiatrist testified.

- That made Dzhokhar all the more subservient to Tamerlan, said Michael Reynolds, an associate professor of Near Eastern studies at Princeton University, who provided expert testimony on Chechen culture.

- "The younger brother owes his deference to the older brother," he said.

as the couple's relationship grew more serious.

Tamerlan was an outgoing, flashy dresser when he began dating Russell, Ransom said.

She became concerned after Tamerlan cheated on Russell and laughed after tricking her into believing she might have contracted AIDS from him.

"At one point I heard him laughing really hard, and she was crying," Ransom testified, referring to the AIDS incident. Tamerlan did not have AIDS, she said. REUTERS

Bad weather disrupts links to Nepal village

Village. Rescuers are digging in the snow for signs of about 120 others believed buried.

Bad weather has cut links with a remote village in Nepal where dozens of villagers and trekkers are believed to be buried under an avalanche set off by last month's devastating earthquake, officials said on Tuesday.

The death toll from the April 25 quake in the Himalayan nation has reached 7,566, and more than 14,500 were injured, the government said.

About 100 bodies were recovered on Saturday and Sunday at Langtang village, 37 miles north of Kathmandu, which is on a trekking route popular with Westerners.

Gautam Rimal, assistant chief district officer in the area where Langtang is located, said authorities had not made contact with Langtang for more than 24 hours because of bad weather.

Policies. He would change the approach on ISIS threat from attempting to contain it to instead conquering it.

Republican Mike Huckabee entered the race for his party's 2016 presidential nomination on Tuesday, looking to break out from an ever-widening field by drawing on the support of social conservatives attuned to his culture-warrior message.

In a speech filled with fiery rhetoric, Huckabee, a former governor of Arkansas, said that, if elected, he would change government policies to focus more on the economic plight of middle-class Americans.

Huckabee vowed strong U.S. support for Israel and took a dim view of negotiations aimed at deterring Iran from developing a nuclear weapon.

"Hell will freeze over" before Iran gets a nuclear weapon, he added.

A former Baptist pastor and unabashed culture warrior, he entered the Republican field facing competition for the support of social conservatives who backed him in 2008.

Huckabee spoke of his life in Arkansas, recalling daily prayers, fishing and hunting. He met his wife at the high school they attended.

The candidate said hard-working Americans are being left behind in today's economy and blamed President Barack Obama for U.S. economic woes.

High school teaches abstinence, 20 kids get chlamydia

Nearly 7 percent of students at Crane High School in Crane, Texas, have chlamydia. Compare that to the county's 0.26 percent rate of chlamydia in 2013.

The Crane Independent

School District sent letters to parents about the outbreak to warn parents of juniors and seniors of the risk of infection. The Texas Department of State Health services informed Crane and Upton County officials after seeing the alarming numbers.

dent Jim T. Ramage defended the approach, saying that abstinence is an effective way to prevent chlamydia.

"If kids are not having any sexual activity, they can't get this disease," he said. "That's not a bad program."

Ramage and his board are reviewing the curriculum, however, and will propose a curriculum on May 19.

Five paintings missing since World War II returned to Germany

Five paintings that will be returned to Germany in cooperation with the Monuments Men Foundation, during a ceremony at the State Department in Washington, DC. / GETTY IMAGES

Movie. A special hot line set up after the film 'The Monuments Men' helped recover the paintings.

Five paintings missing since World War II are being returned to Germany from the United States so that they can be given back to their rightful owners, the State Department and Monuments Men Foundation said on Tuesday.

The foundation, which aims to return art works missing since the war, said the move came at the behest of the families of those who acquired the art.

"The paintings ... represent an important part of Germany's cultural heritage. They have a long history," Victoria Nuland, Assistant Secretary of State for European affairs, told reporters. "Both sets disappeared at the end of the war and resurfaced in the United States."

Three of the paintings, which originated from an art gallery in the Germany city of Dessau, were won by an American soldier in a poker game, who later mailed them to his wife.

The works, by Frans

Francken III, Christian Wilhelm Ernst Dietrich and Franz de Paula Ferg, had been hidden in a potassium mine for safekeeping during the war, according to the foundation.

The two other paintings, which once belonged to Queen Victoria's daughter Princess Victoria, came from a castle near Frankfurt, which was confiscated by U.S. forces and converted into an officers' club.

Those works, which include a portrait of Princess Victoria as a child being held by her mother, were bought in 1945 by a woman who served as a librarian for the U.S. Special Services. REUTERS

Five things you need to know

In Baltimore, AG pledges to help police reform

New U.S. Attorney General Loretta Lynch on Tuesday met with Baltimore officials and the family of a 25-year-old black man killed by police last month and vowed to help the city pursue police reform.

The meeting in Baltimore came the week after the city's top prosecutor brought criminal charges against the six officers involved in the April 12 arrest of Freddie Gray, who suffered a spinal injury that led to his death a week later.

Gray's death was the latest in a series of police killings of unarmed black men across the United States and provoked weeks of largely peaceful protests punctuated by a day of arson and looting on April 27.

"This is a flash point situation," Lynch told a group of officials after a private meeting with the Gray family. "We lost a young man's life, and it begins to represent so many things."

The Justice Department, she said, will work with the city as it seeks to improve its police department. Prosecutor Marilyn Mosby said last week there had been no legal basis for Gray's arrest, which came after he fled from a police officer after making eye contact. REUTERS

US approves $330 million in emergency funds for bird flu outbreak in poultry

The Office of Management and Budget has granted U.S. Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack the authority to transfer an additional $330 million in emergency funds for the agency's handling of the quickly spreading avian influenza outbreak.

The funds will be used to cover indemnity claims filed by poultry farmers whose flocks have been infected by the highly pathogenic H5 virus and other issues related to the outbreak, the sources told Reuters. The additional funds will be added to the $84.5 million previously set aside by the USDA for the outbreak. REUTERS

JetBlue and Amazon agree to stream media in-flight

JetBlue and Amazon have agreed to stream television, movies and music from the Internet retailer in-flight, broadening travelers' entertainment options, the companies said Tuesday.

The service will be available on a majority of JetBlue's aircraft this year via the airline's free Wi-Fi so passengers can use their laptops and mobile devices.

Travelers can rent or buy titles from Amazon or stream content at no extra cost if they are Amazon Prime members. REUTERS

US probing Islamic State claims it was behind Texas cartoon attack

U.S. investigators were looking into claims by the Islamic State that it was behind a failed attack on a Texas exhibit of cartoons of the Prophet Muhammad in which two gunmen were killed, but officials said they doubted the group's direct involvement.

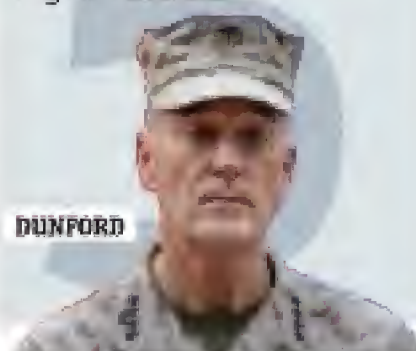

Islamic State said on its official online radio station that "two soldiers of the caliphate" carried out the attack.

The White House said it was too early to tell if the gunmen killed were tied to ISIS. Spokesman Josh Earnest said many people tried to capitalize on the influence of the group by claiming allegiance when they were not affiliated. REUTERS

Obama nominates new top US military officers

President Barack Obama nominated Marine General Joseph Dunford as the next chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, praising him as a leader who helped shape the changing role of U.S. troops in Afghanistan.

Obama urged the Senate to quickly confirm Dunford and his new pick for vice-chairman, Air Force General Paul Selva. He said he would rely on their advice on the fight against Islamic State militants and "rebalancing" U.S. military posture in the Asia Pacific region. REUTERS

Met Gala: Katy Perry and John Mayer pack on the PDA

So I guess we're officially back into the on-again swing of Katy Perry and John Mayer's epic, years-long, on-again, off-again romance? Because they were the talk of the Met Gala after-party circuit after they were spotted locking lips, holding hands and generally canoodling at a soiree at the Boom Boom Room, according to Us Weekly. (Also, I'm sure it's a fun place and all, but that really just sounds like toddler code for the bathroom.) So if you, like me, have a fancy, two-sided Perry-Mayer sign on your fridge — kind of like a "clean or dirty" button for the dishwasher — kindly flip it to "on," because they're totally on.

Speaking of on-again, off-again romance, relations between Justin Bieber and ex Selena Gomez appeared to warm, as the two were seen acting civil toward one another at Rihanna's after-party, where they "exchanged some words," according to E! News. And while he even told the paparazzi that "Selena looked gorgeous" on his way out, the Biebs was apparently more focused on making an impression on the fashion world. So, you know, be afraid of that. "It meant so much to Justin," a source says of his attending the Gala. "It was definitely his entrance into fashion. He was honored and happy the whole time." Wow, the whole time? Impressive.

Ryan Gosling finally eats his cereal

Ryan Gosling isn't necessarily a fan of the myriad Internet memes devoted to him, but the guy's not made of stone, OK? When he got word that Ryan McHenry, the Vine user who popularized the bizarre "Ryan Gosling won't eat his cereal" videos, had passed away this week after a two-year battle with cancer, Gosling sprung into action, posting his own Vine featuring him finally — finally! — eating some cereal. "My heart goes out to all of Ryan McHenry's family and friends," Gosling tweeted. "Feel very lucky to have been a part of his life in some small way." Now if we could only get him to lighten up on the "hey girl" stuff.

Miley Cyrus knows how to launch a charity

Miley Cyrus is bringing back her fun "Backyard Sessions" music performance series but this time with a purpose. The "Wrecking Ball" singer just launched the Happy Hippie Foundation, a nonprofit dedicated to supporting at-risk LGBT and homeless youth. She kicks things off by dueting with none other than Joan Jett on a rendition of Joan Jett and the Blackhearts' "Different."

and further duets feature Ariana Grande, Melanie Safka and Against Me!'s Laura Jane Grace. "I want to use my voice as a megaphone to young people everywhere and encourage human evolution," Cyrus says. "No one should have to hide who they really are, no matter what his or her name, gender or status. That's why Happy Hippies are here to say that every life is valuable." There's no joke here. I just think she's doing something awesome.

Michael Jackson's kids are squabbling

You may find this hard to believe, but there's trouble in the Jackson family. Michael Jackson's oldest kids, Paris and Prince, are reportedly no longer speaking to each other, according to Radar Online. "Paris is barely even speaking to her older brother Prince," a source says. "She cannot tolerate her brother and says that he is disgracing their father's legacy" since turning 18 and inheriting a massive fortune. Prince, it seems, has been acting out, and "this type of behavior does not fly" with Paris, according to the source. "The family is doing everything that they can to keep Paris away from Prince because they do not want her to go down the wrong path again." Sure, but where does Blanket stand on all of this?

Carey Mulligan is a modern woman

Interview. The actress likes that “Far from the Madding Crowd” is feminist even for today.

Carey Mulligan says she wasn't really looking to do another period drama when “Far from the Madding Crowd” came along. She's always done them, but the role of Bathsheba Everdene — a headstrong woman juggling three suitors to whom she's either indifferent or weirdly into — was too good to turn down. The actress talks about how this Thomas Hardy adaptation was different and whether she'd ever do something splashier.

The uniqueness of Bathsheba Everdene:

“What I was so excited about was that it's a story that started with a woman who turned down a proposal of marriage. And a good one. It's a young woman in one of the Victorian classics that doesn't start her story looking to be married and isn't looking to be defined by a man. It really hasn't crossed her mind that she would be married. That was so exciting. That was obviously not the viewpoint of most women of the time.”

Working with others:

“When you get to work with actors like this, there's a certain security — especially when you make an idiot of yourself in the first week, which is what I did.” She also found director Thomas Vinterberg a great help. “We had so many extensive, long conversations going around and around on things. And Thomas said things over and over and over again. I was really annoying. By the time we were on set, we were set on an idea.”

On the costumes:

“We wanted to feel like real people and not actors wearing outfits, not people wearing makeup — but still vaguely attractive in daylight. We never wanted it to feel like a buttoned-up costume drama where people wear outfits and look uncomfortable. ... The way Thomas shoots, it's all about performances. The era is reflected in the costumes. The makeup and the hair, because we were outside all the time, could get ruined immediately. It had to be enduring and functional. But they always made us look good, which was a bonus.”

Carey Mulligan's Bathsheba Everdene is just not that into Michael Sheen in “Far from the Madding Crowd.” / FOX SEARCHLIGHT

@mattprigge
matt.prigge@melrose.com

One more thing

Carey: Action star?

On the idea of her ever taking an action movie role, she says: “Never say never to anything. The decisions I've made over the last couple years have been driven by the characters and the scripts and the directors. ... I'm always drawn to really strong characters but also characters that have a lot to them. I'm not really interested in playing two-dimensional people. But what's amazing about Bathsheba is she's complex and mixed-up and strong and resilient — she's just so many things in one. That's what I'm driven by. And if that came in the form of some action hero, then of course, that'd be great. But it might not happen.”

PLACE: Newton Highlands Congregational Church Fellowship Hall
54 Lincoln Street, Newton Highlands
(one block down Lincoln Street from the Newton Highlands T stop)

The lecturer, Jose de Dios Mata, is originally from Spain. As a teenager, he felt a special interest in music and studied flamenco guitar. Later, he worked for the government and for five years was a special agent in the Intelligence Services. In his personal life, he faced a pressing challenge. A relative's sudden illness as well as his own almost complete loss of hearing due to a congenital lesion, which he was told would require immediate surgery or result in total deafness, forced him to seek a solution. Jose de Dios was introduced to Christian Science by a doctor who encouraged him to explore this system of spiritual healing. Both situations were quickly and completely healed solely through reading Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy.

Child care will be provided at the Christian Science Church
1141 Walnut Street
half a block from the Highlands T-Stop
For further information – 617-527-6948

Mr. Mata will also be lecturing on “Divine Love: the answer to universal health” at First Church of Christ Scientist, Belmont – 199 Common Street, May 9th at 2:00 p.m.

"Fifty Shades of Grey" is the best possible choice for a special 100th episode from Honest Trailers, isn't it? / CHUCK ZLOTNICK

Honest Trailers turns 100

Film. How a snarky YouTube lark became a viral sensation.

Screen Junkies' video series Honest Trailers, which pokes fun at blockbusters — sometimes lovingly, sometimes not so lovingly — has hit its 100th episode with the Honest Trailer for "Fifty Shades of Grey." To celebrate the occasion, we went behind the scenes with Honest Trailers creator Andy Signore to find out the secret to their online success.

Where it all started

"Phantom Menace" was being rereleased in Imax 3-D, and I remembered the disappointment in that movie. Everyone was so hyped, and the trailer sort of tricked everybody," Signore explains. "So we did that on a lark as a one-off. It did pretty well, and then I was like, 'Let's try it again.' And everyone else went, 'Are you sure? It was kind of a one-note thing.' And then we did 'Twilight,' 'Transformers' and 'Titanic,' and those hit even harder. After those and then 'Avatar,' we realized we had something seriously connecting with the audience."

Patience is key

"We have to wait until the movie is out digitally for us to play with it," Signore says. "We've often said, 'Couldn't we do a trailer of a movie that just has a trailer?' But you don't have the honest footage because the trailer is always giving you the cool parts, and most of our Honest Trailers are built around the boring parts or the parts that they don't really want you to see."

You can play with the format

"We have a formula, don't get me wrong, but we'll try and step away from it when we can," Signore says. "We don't have to do the same thing week after week, we can try new things. Like our 'Boyhood' Honest Trailer — whether it was successful or not as far as views, it was just fun to take a break and do a different format. I remember being worried about if the 'Les Miserables' one would work. When we can push ourselves and find sort of the different format changes, I think it helps us stay sane and keeps the brand fresh."

Sometimes studios come asking for it

"We've had a few [studios approach us]. None of them have come to fruition because they realize, 'Oh wait, I don't think we want to actually do it,'" Signore says. "Some actors have been in touch about doing one of their classic movies, but then they don't want to incur the wrath of that sort of thing. We've yet to crack the code of the studio- or actor-endorsed thing."

Sometimes the filmmakers aren't too pleased

"When he saw the 'Lego Movie' one, Chris Miller tweeted, 'I don't really agree with this, but I laughed,'" Signore says. "Zack Stentz, who wrote 'Thor' and 'First Class,' tweeted out, 'If anyone shares these insufferable Honest Trailers with me again, I will unfollow you.' We replied to him and apologized, and he has actually become a fan."

Home how to: Bohemian on a budget

Four tips on curating a well-traveled home for cheap

EMILY LAURENCE
@EmLaurence
emily.laurence@metrc.us

Creating a home rich in texture and color doesn't mean you have to wait around for one of the chic Tibetan boutiques in your neighborhood to have a sidewalk sale. "The key to bohemian style is a layered and collected home that reflects your own personality," says Justina Blakeney, author of the beautiful new coffee-table book "The New Bohemians." "The heart of a bohemian home is creativity," she says. With that in mind, we called her for some tips on how to create a boho home without going broke.

Give what you have new life

Blakeney says the easiest way to make your flea market find look like it was imported from Morocco is to paint it, and her big tip for going boho is to go bold. "People get scared to make a bold paint choice because they're scared they'll hate it. But if you hate it, you can just paint it a different color. It's not a permanent thing," she says. "I have a dresser I bought for $100 at this place called Junk in Brooklyn, and I've painted it, like, five different colors."

ALL PHOTOS DAINTO

Shop secondhand

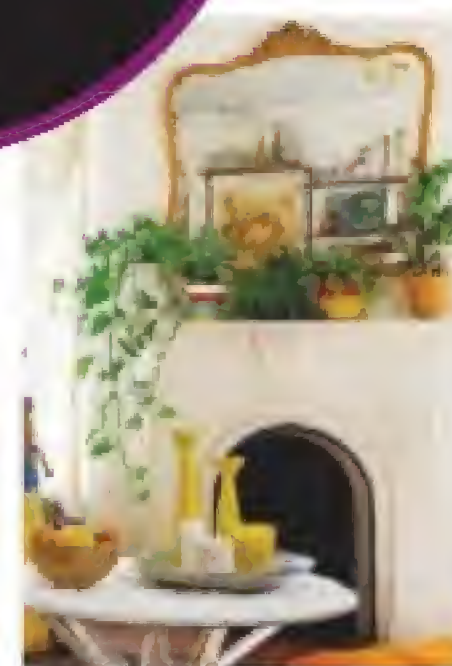

The couches and beds featured in "The New Bohemians" are all layered with beautiful, brightly patterned pillows. Blakeney says she scored most of hers on eBay. "Instead of paying $80 for a pillow from a New York boutique, I'll pay $15 for one I find on eBay," she says, adding that the best search terms to use are "kilim pillows" or "Berber Moroccan pillows."

Accent with potted plants

Instead of spending a fortune on freshly cut flowers, Blakeney says to figure out what type of potted plants will thrive in your apartment. "I included a plantopedia in the back of the book to bust the green thumb/brown thumb myth," she says. "You just need the information about what type of plants thrive in the environment you have at home, how often you should water it, and then just follow through."

To her, a plant trailing down a tall bookshelf or a beautiful palm arching in the corner is a staple to bohemian living and provides a figurative and literal breath of fresh air. "Everything around us is computers and cars. Even at home, we have all these machines, metal and cement. We need to balance out urban living with plants," she says.

Making homemade baby food just got easier

Skip store-bought grub with these simple tips.

MARIANNE HAYES
@MetroBOS

Whipping up homemade baby food doesn't have to be a time-consuming, cumbersome affair—especially if you follow these expert tips. Natalie Monson, a registered dietitian, mother of three and owner of Super Healthy Kids, offers up her favorite hacks.

You don't need fancy equipment wrong; the Baby Bullet probably does make amazing baby food. But if you'd like to save some counter space (and $60), you can likely get by on equipment you already have.

"I have a Blendtec that came with twister jars that are great for making baby food," says Monson. "And once you start getting into the meats and more mixed foods, a food processor also works really well."

You can also smash up fruit or steamed veggies either by hand or with regular utensils. For example, a fork is the perfect tool for mashing up a ripe banana, which can then be hand-fed to your little one.

Don't bother with two meals

"A lot of times, parents think they have to make something totally separate for their baby, but once they're eight or nine months, they can really eat mostly what you're eating — just in a softer form," says Monson.

To prevent meats from tasting dry, she advises mixing them with fruits and

Invest in the basics

Stroll down the baby aisle at any grocery store, and you'll see rows and rows of little squeeze-pouches of premade baby food. This trend has picked up major steam over the last few years, and with good reason—they're quick, easy and convenient.

They can also be a bit pricey. Fortunately, parents can now buy reusable squeeze-pouches for their homemade food. Monson particularly likes the Little Green Pouch brand.

"On the bottom, it's like a Ziploc that you can open to put the food in, and it zips tight so it doesn't leak," she says. "You just unscrew the cap and squeeze the food out." She adds that you can also make food in batches and then freeze it in the reusable pouches. Since they defrost so quickly, they make for a great grab-and-go option.

veggies like sweet potatoes, apples or pears. This will sweeten up the taste while adding some much-needed moisture to the meal.

Medford might be a little further from downtown than you're used to, but the view from the roof deck at the Residences can't be beat. PROVIDED

If so, you might want to look into the Residences @ One St. Clare, the only condos on the market.

LINDA CLARKE
lclark@metro.us

"You gotta take the granny out of a lot of the homes in Medford," says Christian Petrillo, a lifelong resident of the city and Managing Partner at Newbury Street-based Entrepid Capital Partners. Next month, in conjunction with Waypoint Companies, Petrillo's company launches The Residences @ One St. Clare in Medford, a conversion of the St. Francis of Assisi School building into a new condominium housing 18 residences.

"We're redefining what living in Medford can be. We have raised the bar. These offer a city feel that's sleek and chic, with roof decks and city views," he says. The city view being Boston, a place where, like Petrillo, people work but prefer to leave behind at the end of the day to head home to a quieter area. Like Medford?

"You feel like you're somewhere else. There's the Fellsway to explore, yet you're 10 minutes from Boston," says Petrillo. He may not even need to talk up his latest project, as there are no other condos currently on the market in Medford.

"Zero condos, no inventory," Petrillo says. "We have a list of people waiting for these to become available."

The Residences @ One St. Clare isn't just any project, and it was essential to Petrillo it be well-received by the people already living there and that they understood that it wasn't just a way to make money.

"I drive by the building every day. I am connected to this neighborhood, not just to the city," he says. "I was married at St. Francis church and my children were baptized there."

The Residences @ One St. Clare have been three years in the finishing, one-and-half of which were spent working with the city and neighbors on permits and design.

"With houses of worship, they're a cornerstone in the community," Petrillo says. "There's a lot of emotional ties and you have to be respectful of concerns. We held meetings and listened, altered plans, then held more meetings. If there were problems, we addressed them. It's always a good plan to listen to the neighborhood."

Letters to the editor

It's good to be a cow

Re: 'Don't have a cow' (Metro, May 4) I don't know where the letter writer got his information, but clearly, he hasn't been to the same farms I've been to. Most small farmers (NOT corporations) treat their cows very well. They are fed in the morning and milked. Then they are turned out into a pasture all day, where they can eat, chew cud and socialize. In the evening, they are fed and milked again. It's a pretty good life for a cow. The farms I have been to keep a bull, so the cows can breed when they like. The cows are named. They are vaccinated whenever necessary. The calves are not taken from mom at birth; instead, they are kept together and weaned when appropriate. Then they are given a formula just like human babies. I've never seen a cow chained to a floor, not allowed outside and otherwise treated badly. Farmers make their living by selling the milk their cows produce. Unhappy or ill-treated cows do not produce, so it is in the farmer's best interest to treat them as humanely as possible. SUE EARLEY, VIA EMAIL

Attacking the way livestock is raised with incendiary misinformation is not only manipulative of concerned consumers, it is downright hurtful to farmers. It breaks my heart seeing my childhood memories on my family's dairy farm degraded to the point of "cruelty." New-born calves are allowed to spend time with their mothers after birth but are later housed separately from their mothers for the safety of the baby. The milk from the mother cow is provided to the calves in order to provide colostrum and other nutrients, similar to that of milk provided after a human baby is born. Cows are not chained onto a concrete floor, as that is not healthy for the animal and reduces production. A healthy cow can live for ten years or more on a dairy and not four, as mentioned in the published letter. Looking out for the health and well-being of livestock is not only the moral responsibility of a dairy farmer, it is also needed to put food on the table for their family. DOUG S., VIA EMAIL

Cup playoffs can provide some lessons for Bruins

NHL. The Bruins may want to follow the model set by some of the current Cup contenders.

Summer hasn't even officially started yet but it feels like it has been months since the Bruins last played a game at TD Garden. The B's just missed out on the playoffs and scattered around the world for the longer-than-expected offseason, so it has been a quiet few weeks on Causeway Street. Who knows how much of the Stanley Cup postseason Boston and its front-office are watching, but for those who have tuned in, here are some things they have probably noted: they need a top goal-scorer, goal tending (as always) wins in the playoffs and the dominant teams out West (Chicago and Anaheim) look like the class of the league.

Boston's fans should at least be enjoying the fact that Montreal dropped its first two games of the Eastern Conference semifinal series at the Bell Centre vs. Tampa Bay. The Canadiens face a must-win on Wednesday (7 p.m., USA) at Amalie Arena. The Lightning won, 2-1, in double overtime in Game 1 then embarrassed Montreal, 6-2, in Game 2 on Saturday. For all of Boston's recent struggles vs. Montreal, Tampa Bay is the exact opposite as they are 7-0-0 against the Canadiens this season. Ben Bishop (6-3, 1.71 goals against average, .933 save percentage,

Alex Ovechkin and the Capitals have a 2-1 series lead over the Rangers in the Eastern Conference semi-finals. / GETTY IMAGES

GM search

The Bruins' search for a GM continues:

- Assistant B's GM Don Sweeney and current Rangers assistant GM Jeff Gorton are the two prime candidates remaining though the NY Post said that the Rangers have not allowed Gorton to interview with the B's.

one shutout) has never won a playoff series before, but right now he's outplaying Montreal star goaltender Carey Price (4-4, 2.34 goals against average, .922 save percentage, one shutout).

The Capitals and Rangers have been more evenly matched through three games with Washington on top 2-1 after a thrilling 1-0 victory in Game 3 on Monday. Capitals goaltender Braden Holtby (5-4, 1.54 goals against average, .949 save percentage) has been outstanding while Washington has gotten plenty of contributions from its depth players like forward Jay Beagle, who scored the game-winning goal in Game 3.

Boston still has Tuukka Rask and plenty of solid role players but obviously the B's have nothing that resembles Capitals star forward Alexander Ovechkin (4 goals, 4 assists).

Likewise, the amount of high-level players out West is staggering. Anaheim's Corey Perry leads the league with 13 points this postseason while line-mate Ryan Getzlaf has added 10 points. And the B's surely get painful memories of a 2013 Stanley Cup Final loss whenever they see the Blackhawks since most of the that same nucleus - Patrick Kane, Duncan Keith and Jonathan Toews are still tearing it up.

Patriots release CB Dennard

A year after cornerback was seemingly the deepest position on their roster, the Patriots are heading into the 2015 season with a scary lack of depth in the secondary. The Pats waived cornerback Alfonzo Dennard Tuesday after losing Darrelle Revis and Brandon Browner in March. Dennard was placed on injured reserve prior to New England's 2014 season finale but had a big 2013 postseason, recording a pair of interceptions.
